Evening Post.

PHILADELPHIA.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1824.

TO READERS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

It is due to Moses to say, that so far from coinciding in opinion with "A Friend to the As-

"The Misanthrope," "S." and "Pleasure," will also appear at that time.

What has become of Alcibiades? We shall be gratified by another of his meritorious Tales.

Our correspondent "C" will oblige us by resuming his pencil, and furnishing for the "Post" a continuation of those sketches which a short time since we had the pleasure of publishing for him.

We shall endeavour to make atonement to "Theodore" for the neglect he complains of, by giving a speedy insertion to his "Fragment."

"Emily" is not forgotten.

Congress assembled on Monday week, the 6th of December. We are led to believe that the approaching session will be attended with circumstances highly important to the public weal.

Caucasi, the celebrated Italian Artist, now engaged in the prosecution of his admirable profession, in the city of New York, has executed a model of a monument, which deservedly claims to be ranked among the happiest efforts of genius and the chisel.

The extent to which Piracy is carried, notwithstanding an organized naval force is kept on the West India station, with able and skillful officers to command it, is still extremely alarming.

The mercenary wretches who infect that coast, by sea and land, continue to commit their depredations, and abuse, in a most brutal manner, such of our countrymen as may have the misfortune to fall into their clutches; not unfrequently adding to the catalogue of their other crimes, that most heinous one, the crime of murder!

It may be asked, how is this? Is the commandment of the to the world, Christian and virtuous of style, to his sacredly parallel. I make three remarks on the world, and the existence of such work, and of its character, and that we believe such circumstances have occurred as will long tend to produce the work for the period and inspection of the inquiring community.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS.

We have sent Circulars to those of our Patrons in the country, who are twelve months in arrears for the paper, and we expect a reasonable and satisfactory reply from most of them, knowing that business, with many, has interfered to prevent their attending to the claims of the printer—who notwithstanding this apparent neglect, is hourly and weekly employed in adding to their social comforts and the edification of their families, and therefore should not be entirely overlooked. The paper will be discontinued to such who fail to make proper returns to us by the first of January, 1825. We should like, however, to realize the dream that occurred to a brother Type, which was published not long since. He dreamed—(and it was truly remarkable)—that all his delinquent subscribers fled in and paid up their old accounts—consequently, he immediately procured new type. Now this was something worth dreaming for; and though we do not place much reliance in such speculations of the brain, yet we will not be backward in fulfilling that part of it respecting the type, as soon as the other is made manifest to our senses. The Post will offer many additional claims to the patronage of all classes of readers this winter. We intend, at the commencement of the year, to enlarge our sheet to the size of the daily prints, and to make other improvements that will meet the particular approbation of our country friends. The subscription price will be continued at two dollars per annum, payable in advance.
